

Green Teacher – Winter 2018 Webinars

All our webinars are free (and can be freely viewed up to 30 days after the live session), but you need to register in advance. Please see the details below and share this email with friends and colleagues who might be interested in these sessions.

Register for any of the below webinars at <http://greenteacher.com/webinars/>

Building Kids' Citizenship Through Community Engagement

Presenter: Bob Coulter, Wednesday, February 28th, 7:30-8:30pm EST

How can we give young people opportunities to grow through productive involvement with their local community? In this webinar, veteran educator Bob Coulter draws on more than 30 years of experience as he shares strategies to support young people in their efforts to become confident, self-directed citizens. These ideas are made practical through recommendations for productive uses of digital technology and a review of frameworks that have proven useful for designing community-based learning experiences.

Building Complete Communities

Presenter: Kathleen Watt, Monday, March 5th, 7:30-8:30pm EST

Join us as we discuss sustainable development and environmental protection, and how to bring these ideas into the classroom. To accommodate a growing population while protecting the environment, it is important that cities and towns are built in a sustainable way. In this webinar we will talk about how building complete communities and using greenbelts (areas of protected greenspace) can be effective methods to protect the environment and how your students can learn about these initiatives. We will chat about how sustainable development, environmental protection, and reducing climate change can be integrated into classrooms to help students become more aware of sustainable growth. We will provide many classroom ideas and free educational resources. Join us to hear more about how your students can learn to build complete communities for the future!

Collective Voice for Risk in School Grounds

Presenters: Lisa Howard and Anders Wange Kjellsson, Tuesday, March 13th, 7:30-8:30pm EST

Do we overprotect our children? What are the daily experiences you had as a child on school grounds? What are we, as a society, offering children today on school grounds in terms of risk? This webinar will consider these questions, provide information on risk in school grounds, and how we can work as collective voice and take steps locally. Lisa and Anders will share some tools for talking to parents, educators and others about the importance of risk taking, and will provide examples of good play space design on children's behaviour.

Tim Grant, Editor
Green Teacher
95 Robert Street
Toronto, ON M5S 2K5
416-847-1065, tim@greenteacher.com